Recipes & Specifications by Hamilton Grant

With consumer trends emerging and changing faster than ever, developing and maintaining recipe data across multiple spreadsheets and researching compliance takes up time you can't afford, slowing the new product development and go-to-market processes.

From creation to final product, our intuitive, powerful solutions accelerate recipe development, and simplifies cost management, compliance, labelling, nutrition and more.

Our recipe and specification solution streamlines your development process and eliminates the risks associated with independent spreadsheets, emails, and PDF documents all holding different pieces of information and ingredients for the same recipes. And, it can be integrated with other systems such as ERP to streamline your business further.

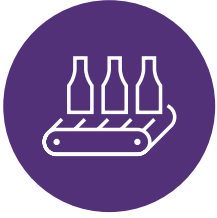

What customers say

“Within a very short space of time we realised that here was a solution that would support our growth, streamline recipe management at all levels across the organisation, and allow us to produce a wide range of standard and one-off reports, safe in the knowledge that we are working with highly accurate and up-to-date information.”

Create better, more compliant food, faster

Get more done, faster

Customised to your business, our cloud-based software configures your recipe development account for your business and the markets in which you operate, giving you confidence in the validity of the data populated for your recipes.

Understand the impact of recipe changes in real-time

Quickly and effortlessly create recipes from the home screen, and instantly see how recipe changes impact label data and other sector-specific information like baker's percentages, water losses, freezing points, and BRIX for drinks.

Communicate & collaborate

Automatically create comprehensive specifications sheets that can be shared with plants, clients, and auditors to review the final product. And, no matter what stage of a product's lifecycle it's in, you'll be able to quickly answer technical questions from customers and auditors, with information centralized in a single, always-accessible system.

Prioritise growth

Accelerating product development and launching profitable and compliant products faster allows organizations to focus on growing market share and driving profitability leveraging existing markets or global expansion.
